

haitian metal art

Made from repurposed 55-gallon steel drums, Haitian metal art is cut and shaped entirely with hand tools to create works of art unique to the island. Croix de Bouquets, the town where artisans craft the metal, rings with the sound of hammering coming from every workshop.

Much of our metal art comes from the workshop of Jean David Remy, pictured here, through Comite Artisanal Haitien, a Fair Trade organization supporting Haitian artisans so they can make a dignified living.

haitian metal art

Made from repurposed 55-gallon steel drums, Haitian metal art is cut and shaped entirely with hand tools to create works of art unique to the island. Croix de Bouquets, the town where artisans craft the metal, rings with the sound of hammering coming from every workshop.

Much of our metal art comes from the workshop of Jean David Remy, pictured here, through Comite Artisanal Haitien, a Fair Trade organization supporting Haitian artisans so they can make a dignified living.

