

PERU

flower accessories

These bright flowers, created from fabric remnants from a swimsuit factory in Lima, give work to Jupa, a small group of women artisans. The use of remnants not only gives the artisans a source of materials, but also upcycles factory waste.

Originally makers of arpilleras, traditional appliquéd and embroidered textiles, the women have increased their income through these popular, handmade accessories.

PERU

flower accessories

These bright flowers, created from fabric remnants from a swimsuit factory in Lima, give work to Jupa, a small group of women artisans. The use of remnants not only gives the artisans a source of materials, but also upcycles factory waste.

Originally makers of arpilleras, traditional appliquéd and embroidered textiles, the women have increased their income through these popular, handmade accessories.

