

PERU

repurposed flour sacks

Eco-friendly and fun, products made from repurposed Peruvian flour sacks give them a second life and showcase their colorful graphics.

On the outskirts of Lima, women in the Fair Trade sewing group Maná began to experiment with used flour sacks they found in the market. They soon began to create kitchen textiles – towels, aprons, oven mitts, and hot pads. Each one is unique, using the bright images to their best advantage.

PERU

repurposed flour sacks

Eco-friendly and fun, products made from repurposed Peruvian flour sacks give them a second life and showcase their colorful graphics.

On the outskirts of Lima, women in the Fair Trade sewing group Maná began to experiment with used flour sacks they found in the market. They soon began to create kitchen textiles – towels, aprons, oven mitts, and hot pads. Each one is unique, using the bright images to their best advantage.

